Church Club to Give Play in April

When the Methodist Dramatic club meets at the church in New Lenox Friday, Feb. 20, at 7:30, the members will entertain one another by applying their own make-up. This should result in some fascinating faces.

The members of the cast for "Ladies in Retirement" are rehearsing wholeheartedly. This includes Jane Schlatterer, Betty Morrison, Dorothy Sheeler, Mary Greenman, Rhea Campbell, Jane Anderson, and Lewis Loebe. Mr. Loebe is enjoying his position as the only male actor in the cast.

Mrs. Loebe, the director, has announced that the play will be presented April 9, 10, and 11, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights.

The Rock Island's Imperial Limited, California bound, which ordinarily cuts through Mokena like a blue streak at about 10:30 p. m. made an unexpected stop Tuesday night, and, fortunately enough, within convenient proximity to the Mokena Volunteer fire department.

The train crew had spent some time thawing out a steam pipe underneath the baggage car before leaving in Chicago, and having accomplished this, they were on their way West. Fred Clark, a former Mokena boy, who now lives in Joliet, noticed that smoke had, for some little time, been issuing from the floor of the baggage car, and it began to worry him. So he decided to stop the train at Mokena for a checkup, and it so happened—quite fortunately—that the long train came to a stop directly across from the village hall.

Clark, who knows his way around Mokena, ran over to the village hall and blew the fire siren. The Mokena fire ladders were on the scene in a matter of minutes, and it was not long before the fire, which was underneath the floor of the baggage car, was extinguished. It was necessary to chop through the floor to get at the fire. The temperature in Mokena was 7 above zero at the time.

While damage to the baggage car was negligible, it is clear that Fred's forethought and quick action averted a serious train fire which, traveling along at high speed, was bound to whip up a fire before it had gone many more miles.

Fred is the son of Mrs. Mary Clark, of Mokena, and has behind him a long tradition of railroad work for his father, Leslie, who died several months ago, worked for many years in the baggage car on a Rock Island train between Chicago and Omaha. Now Fred is following in the footsteps of his father, and evidently doing a fine job.

'Family Circle' Play
By Village Players
Is Great Success

The play, "Family Circle," given by the Mokena Village Players last Friday and Saturday night was well attended. The players all performed their parts well, and on Saturday night an incident, not on the program, came into the play and caused considerable merriment.

It seems that an umbrella which one of the young people in the play was carrying suddenly collapsed as she was leaving on a trip, laden with her luggage. While the actress rose finely to the occasion, the audience sensed that this was not in the script. The other players responded in fine style, just as though the sudden collapse of the umbrella was part of the play.

Girl Scout News

Intermediate troop 90 with their leaders Mrs. Ernest Spannhake and Mrs. William Stoner met Friday afternoon at the Lions Den. Mrs. Charles Barr from Park Forest, was a guest and showed colored movies which her husband took during the inauguration and the parade in Washington. The movies proved so interesting to the girls that they asked to see them a second time. The girls brought various articles they had made in sewing, for their sewing badge, and they decided to start work on the second class badge with growing a sweet potato plant. Mrs. Spannhake appointed the following House Mothers for cleaning up after the meetings, Janet and Patsy Santerelli, and Barbara Anderson. These girls who get to the meetings earlier will also make arrangements for the meetings. Evelyn Rowswell, and Dotie Jean Anderson hostesses, served refreshments. Tuesday, the committee for decorating the stage in the Frankfort school for the annual birthday party met at Mrs. Spannhake's home. Wednesday Feb. 25 the committee for decorating the local library window for display will also meet in the home of Mrs. Spannhake. Mrs. Stoner and Mrs. Spannhake attended the area council meeting held at the YMCA in Joliet Feb. 11.

Troop 97 met Wednesday when Mrs. John Gall played the piano for their Kitchen band practice. The girls then made a trip to the home of Mrs. Don Campbell to see her Grandfather's clock and her mahogany grand piano; these having been in the family for many years. Mrs. Campbell explained the history of the clock and piano, and played the first movement of Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata. She also showed paintings which she has done. Instead of a Valentine party, the girls enjoyed making Valentine dolls out of clothes pins and plastic mats and pipe cleaners. Wednesday the Brownies made Sit-upons, and the older Brownies made giraffes. February 25 all the girls will work on Rabbit Lapel pins for their Easter gifts.

Mesdames Arthur Rowswell, O. V. Rowe, William R. Minuth, Ernest Spannhake, and William Stoner, represented New Lenox at the Area Council meeting Feb. 11 at the Y.M.C.A. in Joliet.

tute cites the recent report by the President's Materials Policy Commission estimating the nation's need for bituminous coal at 300 million tons in 1975—a 70 per cent increase over the 1952 figure. Expanded capacities and new uses, particularly in the industrial field, will account for a considerable part of the increase.

Fowl Worth $5 a Pound

Fowl at $5.33 a pound, eggs at 35 cents each. Those are prices Carl Lowrance, of Joplin, Mo., gets from the 80,000 quail on his farm.

When Lowrance took up quail-raising two years ago, experts said he couldn't raise commercial-size flocks; brooder losses from disease would run at least 20 per cent. They did until Lowrance cut this to 3.5 per cent by adding the wonder drug aureomycin to the chicks' drinking water. Now he finds it impossible to fill all the orders he gets.

DON'T court danger by using pennies or over-size fuses to prevent interruption of the current. When a fuse blows, it's your warning that something definitely is wrong.

DO check to determine the cause. The trouble may be a faulty cord, more likely it's an overloaded circuit. If so, you'll need another circuit to make your wiring as efficient as your appliances.

All are cordially invited. Come, and find peace and joy in the only Savior of mankind.

Business Men on Trial—President Eisenhower has surrounded himself with top notch business men. During the next four years the government is to be run by business men. If efficiency and good government result, business men will regain the high esteem they once held. If the new administration is found wanting, if business men in government do not deliver as expected, then the free enterprise system will suffer a death blow and we will go the way our European cousins are going, down the road to socialism and collectivism.

The business men of the nation are also on trial. The success of the new administration depends to a large extent upon loyal cooperation from the business men of America. If we fail to keep the American standard of living at a high level, if we fail to provide full employment, if we fail to make social progress, then the blame will fall upon the business men of the nation—whether rightly or wrongly—and business men in general will again be in the "dog house."

Our business men must prove they can take a broad and statesmanlike view of public questions and keep the public good in mind. If they work for the welfare of all and win the confidence of the American people, good times are ahead. American business men are on trial.

Big Men Make Sacrifices—President Eisenhower's top men paid a top price for the privilege of serving their country. Charles Wilson gave up a job that paid $550,000 per year and sacrificed $600,000 on the sale of his General Motors stock to take the position of Secretary of Defense at $22,500 a year; Roger Kyes gave up a $200,000 a year job for a $17,500 a year job in order to help Charles Wilson straighten out the National Defense set-up and save the American taxpayers billions of dollars each year; Arthur Summerfield gave up $100,000 a year to become Postmaster General at $22,500 a year and George Humphrey gave up $300,000 a year to take the job of Secretary of the Treasury at $22,500 a year. And so it goes.

By substituting big business men in government for the Pen-dergast type of politician, the academic theorists, and the labor leaders of the Truman regime, Ike hopes to straighten out the Washington mess and place the government on a sound basis. It is a decided change in government leadership. Let us hope it works out in the interests of all the people.

Lindsay Warren Points the Way—For ten years Senator Byrd has been saying that the payroll of the Federal government could be cut in half and that better work and more work could be done after getting rid of the dead timber on that payroll. The Hoover Commission in its report said about the same thing. Lindsay Warren, Comptroller General, has done that very thing in his department. In April 1946 he had 14,904 employees to supervise or process a Federal Budget of $50 billion. Today he has 6,204 employees to supervise or process a Federal budget of $80 billion. This is a reduction of 8,700 employees in 6 years, more than a 50 percent reduction. What one bureau or branch of government can do others can do.

Plant Food Cut Back Poor Economy When Farm Prices Decline

CUTTING down fertilizer use when prices of farm products drop is the worst type of economy a farmer can make, says P. E. McNall, University of Wisconsin agricultural economist.

Even though farm prices should drop 50 per cent and prices of fertilizer should stay the same, McNall says, the average farmer would get back $1.50 in increased

Adding plant food via grain drill. crop value for each $1 he spent for plant food.

Tests at state agricultural colleges and experience on Midwestern farms have shown that at present prices, farmers can expect to get a return of $3 for each $1 invested in fertilizer.

Actually, agronomists at Midwestern agricultural colleges and experiment stations are advising farmers to increase rather than cut down their use of fertilizer. These soils men report that heavy fertilizer applications are the most profitable a farmer can make.

University of Missouri agronomists report that in one test, 25-bushel corn land produced 124 bushels per acre, when 1,100 pounds of nitrogen, phosphate and potash fertilizer was plowed down before planting and a complete starter fertilizer was added at planting time.

Lesson for February 22, 1953

ON February 22 we celebrate the birthday of a man who (it is said) claimed he could not tell a lie. That is an exaggeration. Almost any man can tell a lie if he tries hard enough. But even if this were such a wonderful world that literally nobody could tell a lie, it might still not be the ideal world. For what is most important is not chocking back the falsehoods, important as that is. The big thing is to tell the truth. And it is even harder to tell the truth and tell it right, than to keep from lying. Truth can be told in a dull way so that no one listens to it. If truth is worth telling it ought to be pointed, and when we say "pointed" we mean that three ways.

Pointed At—
For one thing, truth may as well not be told at all if it is not pointed at somebody. There's no use telling your dear old grandmother about the circus; she's not going. There is no use telling a small baby to keep his face clean. There's no use giving a lecture on space-heating to an audience of Hottentots; they're hot enough already. You're talking to the wrong people.

Truth ought to be fitted for, and pointed toward, the people who need it. The Master-Teacher himself showed how this is done. Much of Jesus' most vital teaching was directed to what we would call "hecklers." Sometimes their questions were meant to trip him up (like the three recorded in Matthew 22). Sometimes they were asked from mere curiosity, sometimes they were desperate gropings for light. But whatever the motive, Jesus always gave them answers—plus. He would take advantage of the moment to push in a pointed truth. If only preachers and Sunday school teachers—and politicians too—would spend more time answering the questions people do ask, instead of questions they don't ask!

Sharp Enough To Stick

There is another sense in which truth, to be effective must be pointed. It has to be the opposite of dull. Now there are situations where truth can be dull, and welcome. If you are looking up in the encyclopaedia the population of North Dakota, or trying to find out what niacin is, you don't want to be amused, startled or entertained. You just want plain fact, plainly stated. Professors and other studious people are trained to absorb truth no matter how dull it is presented. It's a poor student who can't learn as much from a dry professor as from a witty one.

But most human situations are not in class-rooms. Truth that is not dry, ought not to sound dry. Truth that's worth remembering ought to be told in such a way that it can't be forgotten. Again, our Lord's teaching was of this sort. He never told a dull truth, and he never told his bright truth in a dull way. His sayings are all pointed; they have a way of sticking in the mind. What he says flashes in the eye like sunlight on steel. There was no one around taking notes when Jesus spoke. His sayings are remembered not because somebody had a good notebook but because what he said, stuck.

"To The Point"

What do we mean by a pointless joke or a pointless remark? We mean, of course, that the thing was not worth saying, however true it may have been. We want people to speak to the point. If we are going to listen to them we want them to be saying something that is worth saying, something we'll be worse off for not knowing. Now again Jesus' teaching was pointed truth in this sense. It was relevant truth, it was truth dealing with specific situations. He came "down to brass tacks" as we say. His teachings did not float away up in the clouds, they came down to earth and walked there. They had to do with people's real problems. And what we shall find out, if we study Jesus' teachings faithfully, is they deal with our problems today too. The problem of the demands—sometimes seeming to conflict—of church and state, of country and conscience; the problems of death and of the life beyond; the problem of how best to serve and obey God; these concerned the men of ancient Judea, they concern us no less. Jesus words are just as pointed today as they were nineteen centuries ago.

Reappointed to Post in Illinois State Legislature

Representative John M. King of Wheaton has been reappointed to the powerful Appropriations Committee of the Illinois House of Representatives in the 68th General Assembly. King, a second-term, was one of the few first termers, two years ago, to ever receive an appointment to the Appropriations Committee. Speaker of the House Warren L. Wood, from Plainfield, also announced that King had been appointed to the Industry and Labor Relations, Waterways, Conservation, Fish and Game, and the important Railroad, Public Utilities, and Aviation committees.

Having recently returned from the Washington presidential and vice-presidential inaugurations where he served as an assistant to Vice President Nixon, King is at work on legislation to revamp the present appropriations system now being used in the State of Illinois and will shortly introduce a bill providing for greater scrutiny and tighter control over all appropriations measures. The legislation will be designed to give members of the General Assembly adequate information to fathom the 500-odd page budget which will be presented by the administration for consideration. "Many millions of dollars may be saved the State of Illinois," King said, "by simply eliminating the overlapping appropriations and the 'fill' that is found in most budget requests. Almost all items of padding can be ferreted out and eliminated if members of the General Assembly are provided with adequate factual information, which they have not had in the past."

1st Moving Rubber Sidewalk Launched At Science Museum

The world's first moving rubber sidewalk, a possible solution to the problem of transporting a large number of people at a continuous rate through congested areas, went into operation Feb. 3 at Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry. More than two million visitors a year will have the opportunity to ride on this first installation.

John L. Collyer, president of the B. F. Goodrich Company, and Major Lenox R. Lohr, president of the Museum of Science and Industry, took the first ride on the new sidewalk, which is part of the company's extensive exhibit, the "Story of Rubber" which opened February 3.

"The moving sidewalk is an example of the many ways in which rubber industry research helps Americans attain a higher standard of living," Collyer said. "Although this first moving sidewalk will be used only to transport people through a part of the Museum exhibit," he said, "this mode of travel is a practical means of transporting rapidly and efficiently vast numbers of people in crowded areas."

Collyer pointed out that moving sidewalks, coupled with escalators, may be the answer to the safe, efficient movement of people relatively short distances. "Indoor moving sidewalks" also have possibilities for use in large buildings such as airline, bus and railroad terminals where pedestrian traffic is exceptionally heavy," he said. The exhibit sidewalk is constructed of fabric and rubber, the bottom being designed to afford excellent sliding abrasion resistance.

The new process was developed ed after 12 years of research and engineering and was perfected under a research contract financed by the synthetic rubber division of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

E. W. Harrington, manager of the Akron, O., experimental plant of B. F. Goodrich Chemical Company, mixed the new catalyst with butadiene and styrene, liquid chemicals derived from oil and gas. He poured the mixture into a salt and acid solution in a glass vat. After stirring the liquid, a piece of rubber was formed in the solution. This was molded into a ball and bounced on the table.

The "Story of Rubber" exhibit includes a 60-foot high guillotine on which visitors try to "execute" a puncture-sealing tubeless tire. Another major exhibit traces the processing of man-made rubber from raw materials to the finished product. This is accomplished through the use of a scale model man-made rubber plant which actually shows the complete flow of materials. At one point in this exhibit provision has been made for drawing off the milky latex so that the visitor can see rubber before it becomes a solid.

Visitors can push a button and see an automobile lifted off the floor by a five-inch section of rubber cemented to a steel hoist. Other exhibits illustrate the collection of crude rubber on plantations, the preparation of the various ingredients in the making of man-made rubber, the manufacture and braiding of hose, uses and applications of Geon plastic, a working aircraft De-Icer, operation of various belt systems, and the step-by-step manufacture of rubber footwear.

Explains Why Dairying Is Fast Changing Industry

The dairy business has been one of the fastest changing in industries in Illinois in recent years, according to a University of Illinois agricultural economist. One of the important changes reports G. C. Kleiman, is the rapid shift to Grade A milk. There are now about 15,000 Grade A producers in the state and more than 85 per cent of the fluid milk being sold to consumers is Grade A. Another important change has been the decline in dairying in Illinois. The state has dropped from 5th to 9th place in dairy production in the past few years, mainly because of relatively high incomes from other farm products.

A fourth trend in Illinois, and in the United States in general is toward more cows per herd and higher production per cow but fewer dairy farms. An average of 60,000 pounds of milk was produced per farm in 1944, and annual production is now up to about 71,000 pounds.

These are only a few of the many changes in progress, Kleiman points out. Many others have been taking place in the marketing phases of the dairy industry including the increase in proportion of milk sold as whole milk and the decrease in sales of cream, the decline in number of dairy plants and the rapid trend to store sales, which now account for about two-thirds of all whole fresh milk sold to consumers.

Four important practices pioneered by State Farm Mutual save members millions of dollars over ordinary insurance costs!

- With State Farm's original—different—insurance plan you pay the cost of a local agent's sales commission only once. After that you pay only for insurance; a real saving every time.
- Careful drivers are the ones State Farm aims to insure... fewer accidents keep costs down.
- State Farm's unique semi-annual method of preparing premium notices enables State Farm to gear rates to members' recent driving records. In the last four years, rates have been reduced more than $18,000,000.
- All these company advantages are shared mutually, and the savings which result benefit State Farm members.

YES, IF YOU ARE A CAREFUL DRIVER YOU CAN BE A STATE FARM MEMBER—CALL US TODAY!

Good Pasture Cuts Hog Feeding Costs Increases Farmer's Profit Per Acre

Thick growing pasture speeds hogs' weight gains, cuts feed bills.

W. M. BEESON, Purdue University animal nutrition specialist, reports that good pasture can save farmers up to 40 per cent of the protein needed to put hogs on the market.

In 50 experiments, hogs on pasture needed an average of 1/4 less protein to grow and fatten than did hogs on dry lot, Beeson said. Some pasture crops make better hog pasture than others. He pointed out that the tests showed ladino clover to be about the best. Hogs on ladino alone grew almost as fast as hogs on alfalfa pasture with a supplement.

Almost all the protein saving comes after the pigs are 100 pounds or more. Up to that time the small pigs need a full feed of protein supplement, Beeson points out.

Good pasture and good soil management go hand in hand, said Beeson. To get thick, high protein meat-building top growth, you need a soil well stocked with nitrogen, phosphate and potash. These can be supplied in the form of commercial fertilizer.

When you cut hog feeding costs by the use of good pasture, you increase your profit per acre. The farmer who builds and maintains high yielding pastures by the use of fertilizer is in a good position to make money from his livestock and dairy operations.

Good Soil Management, More Plant Food Helps Boost U. S. Crop Yields 45 Per Cent

Yield boosting fertilizer gives extra bushels of corn per acre.

SCIENCE and industry have teamed up with the farmer to boost crop yields per acre 45 per cent in the past 20 years, declared the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee, in a statement based on a recent report by the U. S. Department of Agriculture's bureau of agricultural economics.

"This increase has been greater than in any other period of history," said the statement. "The yield rise has included major field crops such as corn, wheat and cotton, as well as the important fruit crops."

Contributing to this rise have been the work of plant breeders and agronomists, machinery manufacturers, fertilizer producers and insecticide makers, says the statement.

"As a result," it says, "hybrid seed corn and other heavier producing grains, labor-saving machines, yield-boosting fertilizer, closer planting, better cultural methods and soil management practices, have helped increase crop production per acre."

"One of the key factors promoting this increase has been the greatly expanded use of fertilizer and lime. Fertilizer use nationally reached an all-time high in 1951, totaling 20,938,740 tons. That was 14 per cent ahead of the previous year and nearly three times as great as before World War II.

"Boosting yields per acre through the use of fertilizer has meant more money for farmers. Higher production means lower cost per bushel and greater profit per acre."

High Income Farms Use More Plant Food; Get Bigger Grain, Meat and Milk Yields

Well fed pastures produce more dairy profits per acre.

IT'S NOT how much money a farmer spends on crop production but how he spends it that counts on the profit side, reports a survey by J. B. Cunningham, University of Illinois farm economist.

Cunningham found that low-income farms spent about as much on high-income farms on crop production, yet there was a difference of as much as $9,537 in net income between them. He based his conclusions on an accounting study of record keeping farms in central and northern Illinois. The farms were of medium size on soils of medium productivity.

Production costs on high-income farms specializing on grain and livestock were only $477 more than those on low-earning farms, yet the high-earning farms had a net return of $8,730, whereas the low-income farms went into the red by $406.

In hog farming production costs averaged only $41 more on high income farms than on low, but there was a $9,537 difference in net income between them. In dairying, production costs were only $1,540 more on high earning farms, while the net return was $9,439 greater.

Cunningham reported that the income farms spent more on fertilizer and lime than did the low-earning farms. That made a big difference in yields per acre of grain, beef, pork and dairy products. Labor was used more effectively on the high-earning farms, because each worker produced from three-fourths to one and one-half again as much as the worker on the low-income farm.

"The high income farms," he said, "were more productive and yielded higher net returns, not because they spent more, but because they spent it where it would do the most good."
